A: This should do it for you: `var chars = new List{ 'u', 'a', 's', 'c', 'e', 'i', 'o', 'n', 'A', 'D', 'E', 'I', 'N', 'O', 'A', 'D', 'E', 'I', 'N', 'O', 'R', 'C', 'P', 'L', 'O', 'M', 'A', 'C', 'C', 'A', 'R', 'I', 'E', 'C', 'E', 'D', 'A', 'R', 'U', 'N', 'C', 'U', 'S', 'D' }; var pattern = new Regex(@"(\\d{4})\\D"); foreach (var line in File.ReadLines(@"Data.txt")) var result = pattern.Match(line); if (result.Success) Console.WriteLine(result.Groups[1].Value);` Q: Cannot get JQuery code to execute after window load This is my first time asking a question, so please forgive me if this is long or confusing. I have a slider that I am using, and I have a button that I am using to fire the function. The problem is that I can't get the script to execute after the page finishes loading, it only works when I click the button. `$(document).ready(function(){ $('#s2').cycle({ fx: 'fade', timeout: 4000, next: '#s5', pause:`

Q: How to use multiple named parameters in MySQL function? I'm using the MySQL native functions `f_instr()`, `f_status()` and `f_length()`. `f_instr()` is used to check if a field contains a token string. The returned value is the token string itself, or NULL if it doesn't match. `f_status()` determines the status of a field, e.g. "D" or "U". `f_length()` determines the length of a field. I have some queries which will perform one of these three checks on the column values and I need to use `f_instr()` and `f_status()` in the same query. If the results are all NULL, then I need to determine the length of the field to produce a NULL value. Here's my current query: `SELECT T1.col1, T1.col2 FROM T1 WHERE (f_instr(T1.col1, 'b') 0 AND (f_status(T1.col1) = 'B' OR f_status(T1.col1) = 'U') AND 6d1f23a050`
